A new video series explaining the basics of the Medicare program is posted at www.MedicareBasics2012.com. The 7 part series was specifically designed for the Baby Boom Generation who began aging into the Medicare program in January 2011. With over 10,000 Baby Boomers turning 65 every day, the need for clear and accurate information about their Medicare options is critical.

The seven parts of the Medicare Basics 2012 series are titled: Medicare Overview, Eligibility & Enrollment, Medicare Parts A & B, Choosing a Medicare Plan, Medigap & Advantage Plans, Medicare Part D and Your Medicare Rights. Two additional videos assist those already enrolled in Medicare in need of information on changing their coverage, the Open Enrollment Period video. And for those individuals who are delaying their initial enrollment or have other qualifying events, the Special Enrollment Periods video is recommended. The total running time for all nine parts is under 40 minutes.

The Medicare Basics 2012 video series is a production of Healthy Aging Today, an informational video broadcasting unit that is now producing exclusively for the Internet. The programs feature lifestyle issues for the 50+ demographic. The Medicare Basics 2012 series is the cornerstone for the re-introduction of Healthy Aging Today as a web-based broadcasting company and was featured on the recently released pilot program. The initial guest interview was with Mike Fierberg, Public Affairs Specialist, Region VIII, Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS). The Medicare Basics video series was reviewed for accuracy and critiqued by Gloria Baca, Dennis Del Pizzo, and Brenda Hudson of Region VIII External Affairs as well as Mr. Fierberg. In his on-air interview, Mr. Fierberg states:

“The Basics series as presented on this website is a very good, accurate, thumbnail sketch of how the (Medicare) system works...The most important thing to do for people who are aging into the system is to get that basic foundation of knowledge of the overall (Medicare) program...so that they can start making decisions on how to receive their healthcare.”
